SPEAKER:
JAMES CHOUNG

What is Emerge 2008?

The purpose of this Asian American student conference is to empower a generation of Asian American students to “emerge” from the shadows and step into the destiny and spiritual leadership to which God is calling them; to “emerge” from spiritual complacency to Spirit-filled witness; to “emerge” from brokenness into wholeness.

The conference is for Asian American college students to take their place in proclaiming the gospel to their campuses.

About James Choung www.jameschoung.net

If you want to know, I, James Choung, was born to Korean immigrants in the heart of Lincoln Park in downtown Chicago. But my dad made me trade frigid winters and muggy summers for Seattle’s incessant drizzle when I was five, and while I was growing up, I took many naps under that blanket of gray.

After high school, I headed east to stare at blackboards full of illegible calculus formulas explained by TA’s with incomprehensibly thick foreign accents. I should thank God every day that I’m not an engineer, and I left college in 1995 with a piece of paper attempting to validate the gobs of financial aid I spent, which said that I had graduated from MIT with a Management Science degree. After that, I left Gordon-Conwell Theological Seminary with a Master of Divinity in 1999 — which is a degree that’s poorly named: shouldn’t we be mastered by divinity instead? — trading confusion about formulas for confusion about God, though I didn’t know I was confused back then. But when I realized how truly confused I was (confusing, ain’t it?), I wandered to the wise gurus at Fuller Theological Seminary, and in 2008, they pushed me back out into the world with a Doctor of Ministry in Postmodern Leadership Development.
